NATIONAL MUSEUM OF AMERICAN JEWISH HISTORY ANNOUNCES SUMMER INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITY FOR MICHIGAN STUDENTS

Made possible by a generous gift from the Eugene Applebaum Family Foundation

PHILADELPHIA— The National Museum of American Jewish History (NMAJH) is pleased to announce a generous gift from the Eugene Applebaum Family Foundation to support two full-time Applebaum Family Interns for the Summer of 2017. The gift will provide funds to qualified applicants who reside in or attend a college or university in Michigan.

“This is an exciting opportunity for Michigan college students to experience working in a Smithsonian Affiliate museum, on Independence Mall in Philadelphia,” said Judith Finkel and Ethel Weinberg, NMAJH’s Academic Liaisons. “Our interns, who work in every department in the Museum and attend a weekly seminar, have the wonderful opportunity to learn how a nonprofit cultural organization works.”

Since 2010, the National Museum of American Jewish History has run a vibrant internship program for undergraduate, graduate, and recently graduated students who want to learn about the museum profession, non-profit organizations, and the American Jewish experience. Internships are available across many departments, including administration, curatorial, development, education, facilities rental and events planning, group services, marketing and communications, public programs, and retail/operations. Summer interns also participate in a weekly seminar which includes presentations by Museum staff, field trips, and career workshops.
