

Pope Francis En Route to Philly; John Boehner Steps Down; Pope Francis' Example of Humility; Philadelphia Welcomes Pope for Epic Visit. Aired 9-10a ET

Aired September 26, 2015 - 09:00 ET

MARQUEZ: Over 100,000 people bore witness to the leader of the Catholic church in his nearly 40-hour New York tour. People ecstatic to be in his presence even if for a fleeting moment like the tens of thousands that line the streets of Central Park.

(END VIDEOTAPE)

MARQUEZ: Now, what you're looking at here, a shot right across the street from Independence Hall, the National Museum of American Jewish History, we've established a camera up there. So you can get a sense of me and all my friends, thousands are here.

Continuing Coverage of Pope Francis's Visit to Philadelphia. Aired 3-4p ET

Aired September 26, 2015 - 15:00 ET

HARLOW: What a night it's going to be. Thank you. Nice to meet you. We appreciate it. And good to have you on.

The Pope expected to depart the seminary any minute. He's heading right there to independence hall. You're looking at live pictures provided by the national museum of American Jewish history where crowds have been waiting hours and hours just for a glimpse at the pontiff. We'll take you live to the people next. (COMMERCIAL BREAK)